- Demonstrating respect, fairness, and inclusivity in all training sessions.
- Maintaining confidentiality of participant information and respecting privacy.
- Delivering training content that is accurate, relevant, and up-to-date, based on thorough research and expertise.

Participants are encouraged to engage actively in the learning process, ask questions, and provide feedback. I create a learning environment that is collaborative, supportive, and conducive to open dialogue. All participants are treated with respect, and their opinions are valued.

Ethical Training Delivery

All training content is sourced responsibly, with respect for intellectual property rights. I ensure that materials are free from bias, culturally sensitive, and representative of diverse perspectives. Ethical principles are embedded in the content and delivery methods, promoting responsible behavior in professional development.

Feedback and Continuous Improvement

Feedback is an integral part of the code of practice. Participants are encouraged to provide feedback on training quality, content relevance, and delivery methods. This feedback is used to make improvements, ensuring that training programs remain effective and aligned with participant needs.
